Technical College

April 7, 1993

To the Honorable the Legislature:

According to Wisconsin Statute 38.12(11)(b), Gateway Technical College if required to report to you the methods used to inform students about sexual assault and sexual harassment on campus.

Gateway Technical College has complied with the statutes in the following manner. Student orientations occurred on all three campuses in August 1992. At that time, Julian Thomas, Gateway Technical College's affirmative action officer, made presentations to the students on the topics of sexual assaults and sexual harassment. The thrust of his comments were that students had a right to report to his office any problems they encountered in the college community that were based on gender.

Gateway also published "Social Issues 1992-93." This publication includes a section sexual harassment and major sections on sexual assaults and forceable rape statistics. The publication was sent to more than 29,000 students enrolled in the college's courses.

I am enclosing a copy for your information.
